(XLth YEAR.) THE (No. 2003)

MARYLAND GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, JUNE 2, 1785.

HAGUE, March 15.

WE hear that the emperor in his laſt declaration, ſays, that he leaves it to the States General to appoint what place they pleaſe for the renewal of the negotiations; but at the ſame time gives them to underſtand that Paris will be the moſt agreeable to him, and the moſt likely place for the negotiation to be carried on at with ſucceſs.

LONDON, March 10.

Laſt week died, at Broad-way farm, near Great Berkhamſtead, Hertfordſhire, Peter, the Wild Boy, who was brought into this country, from Hanover, in the reign of George the firſt; he was placed with a farmer, who was allowed 30l. a year for his ſupport by government. He was near 90 years of age, and notwithſtanding the length of time he lived in this country, he did not acquire articulation.

We are favoured with this remarkable anecdote of an ingenious pick pocket, the celebrated Mr. B— A well dreſſed elderly gentleman dropped down in Fleet-ſtreet, in an apoplectic fit: B— making up to the crowd for plunder, ſaw the gentleman on the ground, when roaring out, "O my dear uncle! my poor dear uncle!" and requeſted that a hackney coach might be called to convey him home: the coach was accordingly brought, and the body with B— was driven on at a little diſtance, he immediately proceeded to rifle the dead man's pockets, and after making a very ample booty, he ordered the coachman to drive to a certain ſurgeon's where, obſerving, that having found the dead body in the ſtreet, and as it was a good ſubject, he had brought it for diſſection. The ſurgeon, without aſking any further queſtions, conveyed the corpſe into a private room, —received the gentleman's cloaths, which he afterwards ſold in Monmouth-ſtreet, and a preſent in money for his body.

March 19. It appears from the laſteſt advices from India, that in the engagement with the Engliſh, the moſt ſingular mode of fighting was adopted: The Nabob's army, from the ſurrounding hills, threw ſhowers of rockets, each about a foot long, with an iron tube fixed to a bamboo, and filled with combuſtibles; and with ſuch force and velocity do they fly, that if they only touch, they take off an arm or leg.

A new contrivance is executing at Leghorn, for ſetting ſix corn mills in motion at one time, by means of a very ſimple machine, with a balance affixed to it, which raiſes the water 27 feet in height, and is charged for as many hours as they think proper. The inventor of this machine, which promiſes the greateſt advantages, is a foreign prieſt, who is gone there to ſet one made after his own model.

March 21. A man of war is arrived at Cadiz, from Lima, with ſeven millions of dollars, beſides other goods.

The report of certain arrangements in adminiſtration being on the tapis continues. The approaching war upon the continent, which is likely to involve all Europe; and the commercial regulations with Ireland, in which this country is ſo poſitively committed, we can neither proceed without ruin, nor recede without confuſion; give a kind of countenance to the report; and create a wiſh in the public, that the report may be grounded in truth. Mr. Pitt's good intentions are not doubted; but his knowledge, though great for his years, is yet too little for his ſtation: his candour expoſes him to the deſigns of the artful man; and it is already ſaid, that he has been the dupe of one perſon, who pretended to be his friend: whether the fact is ſo or not, the aſſertion gains credit. A number of other circumſtances, of no material, tend to the ſame probability, viz. that ſome further arrangements in adminiſtration are in contemplation.

Yeſterday the Dutch ambaſſador had a private conference with the ſecretaries of ſtate, in reference to ſome recent diſpatches which he had received from his court.

It is ſaid, that count gendral Soltikoff, in the ſervice of her imperial majeſty, the empreſs of Ruſſia, is daily expected in this metropolis from Peterſburgh, on matters of importance to this kingdom.

Her imperial majeſty has now twenty-eight men of war of the line for ſea, which have lately been completely fitted out at Cronſtadt and Peterſburgh.

March 26. A letter from Cadiz, dated February 25, ſays, "Our fleet, deſtined againſt Algiers, is now completely equipped with all neceſſary ſtores. The admiral iſſued orders yeſterday for the officers to repair on board their reſpective ſhips by the 30th at fartheſt. The fleet was augmented laſt week by two Malteſe frigates, a Venetian man of war, and a French 40 gun ſhip. It is ſuppoſed the combined force will ſail for the deſtruction of Algiers, early in the enſuing month.

This morning arrived the San Carlos, with a rowgalley, manned with 30 Algerines, her prize. On the 20th ſhe was attacked by four galleys, which ſhe beat off; and on the morning of the 23d ſhe fell in with the one ſhe has made prize of. The men will be ſent to the galleys."

Extract of a letter from Gravesend, to a gentleman in this city, dated February 15, 1785.

"For above three weeks paſt a number of families and perſons, having the appearance of gentlemen, with an incredible quantity of baggage, and who one and all pretended to be Americans, were waiting here for the arrival of ſhips from the river, to proceed to America. For the firſt two or three days after their arrival they paraded the town publicly; but on receiving advice that the ſhips they were waiting for could not arrive here as ſoon as was firſt expected, they all took private lodgings, and kept very cloſe, the badneſs of the weather much favouring them. On Wedneſday laſt appeared off here from London, and came to anchor, two large ſhips, under American colours, called the Riſing States, and the Marquis of Fayette, both bound for New-York. The captains came immediately on ſhore for their clearances, and took on board all the above-mentioned families, &c. amounting in men, women and children, to thirty-ſeven perſons; the boats belonging to the town were two hours in putting them and their baggage on board, which was no ſooner completed, the tide and wind being favourable, than the Americans proceeded to ſea. The caution with which they acted, their eagerneſs to get on board, and other circumſtances, created ſome ſuſpicions here, that all was not right with them; when on this day our conjectures were confirmed by the arrival here of ſeveral wholeſale dealers, and many tradeſmen from London, in purſuit of ſome of them, making inquiries, and deſcribing ſeveral of their perſons, whom they declared were people lately in buſineſs in London, had abſconded, with the whole of their effects, and had defrauded them and others of goods to a conſiderable amount. Mr. B. a wholeſale linen draper in the city, and ſeveral others that came with him, hired a cutter here, and went to the Downs, in hopes the ſhips would come to there; but they returned this day without ſucceſs, declaring, they would immediately publiſh the names of all they knew of them, at full length, in all the London papers. This circumſtance appears to have been a deep and dangerous confederacy, and it is to be feared many others of the like kind are now in agitation, which, it is hoped, may be prevented from proving equally ſucceſsful."

CHARLESTON, (S. C.) May 12.

The organizing of the militia being an object of great moment, eſpecially in the interior parts of the ſtate, to effect this neceſſary purpoſe, his excellency the governor ſet off a few days ago, for Camden.

On Monday evening a gale of wind blew from the N. E. continuing with little variation until Wedneſday morning. As ſeveral guns were heard at ſea, it is conjectured that many veſſels were driven on ſhore, or foundered; in the harbour the tide roſe ſo high as to endanger the different veſſels lying at the wharfs being landed thereon. A report was current that the ſchooner in which the comedians ſailed for Virginia, was ſeen by a veſſel ſince arrived, in great diſtreſs.

Four men in a boat, aſſiſting a veſſel in carrying out an anchor, the boat ſunk, and three of the unhappy men periſhed; the fourth was ſaved by the generous interference of general Gadſden, who offered two guineas to a negro, if he could ſave any of the drowning men; the negro immediately jumped into the boiſterous element, and reſcued one perſon from impending death, for which piece of ſervice he received the promiſed reward.

The Succeſs, captain Connor, ran on ſhore, near White-Point, but the tide riſing ſhe was got off without receiving any material injury.

The St. Anne, captain Younge, ſuppoſed to be loſt, is ſafe at anchor in Five Fathom Hole.

NEW-YORK, May 16.

As the accounts of the reception with which the ſhip Empreſs of China met with on her arrival in China, have been variouſly repreſented in the different newspapers of this city, a gentleman on board, has furniſhed us with the following particulars, ſelected from his journal:

"On the 17th of July laſt, we made the iſland of Java, and the following evening came to anchor in the Streights of Funda. On this occaſion our happineſs was greatly augmented, by finding there two ſhips, belonging to our good allies, the French. The commodore, Monſ. d'Ordelin, and his officers, welcomed us in the moſt affectionate manner; and as his own ſhip was immediately bound for Canton, gave us an invitation to go in company with him. This friendly offer we moſt cheerfully accepted, and the commodore furniſhed us with his ſignals by day and night, and added ſuch inſtructions, for our paſſage through the Chineſe ſeas, as would have been exceedingly beneficial, had any unfortunate accident occaſioned our ſeparation; but happily we purſued our route together. On our arrival at the iſland of Macao, the 23d of Auguſt, the French conſul for China, with ſome other gentlemen of his nation, came on board to congratulate and welcome us to that part of the world, and kindly undertook the introduction of the Americans to the Portugueſe governor of that place. The little time that we were there, was entirely taken up by the good offices of the conſul, the gentlemen of his nation, and thoſe of the Swedes and Imperialiſts, who ſtill remained at Macao; the other Europeans had repaired to Canton. Three days afterwards, we finiſhed our outward bound voyage. Previous to coming to anchor we ſaluted the ſhipping in the river, with thirteen guns; which were anſwered by the ſeveral commodores of the European nations, each of whom ſent an officer to compliment us on our arrival. Theſe viſits were returned by the captain and ſupercargoes in the afternoon, who were again ſaluted by the reſpective ſhips, as they finiſhed their viſits. When the French ſent their officers to congratulate us, they added to the obligations we were already under to them, by furniſhing men, boats and anchors, to aſſiſt us in coming to ſafe and convenient mooring. Nor did their good offices ſtop here; they furniſhed us with part of their own bankſall, and inſiſted further, that until we were ſettled, we ſhould take up our quarters with them at Canton.

"The day of our arrival at Canton, Auguſt the 30th, and the two following days, we were viſited by the Chineſe merchants, and the chiefs and gentlemen of the ſeveral European eſtabliſhments, and treated by them in all reſpects, as a free and independent nation; as ſuch, during our ſtay, we were univerſally conſidered. The Chineſe themſelves, were very indulgent towards us, and happy in the contemplation of a new people, opening to view a freſh ſource of commerce to their extenſive empire.

"After remaining near four months at Canton, and experiencing from all hands every poſſible attention, we ſet ſail for America the 28th of December, and happily arrived in this port, on the 11th inſtant."

May 18. The following is copied from the Charleſton Herald, dated April 28:—By a gentleman juſt arrived from the Weſt-Indies we learn, that ſeveral frigates are ſtationed at the Engliſh iſlands, for the purpoſe of keeping out all American bottoms, and totally excluding them from trading there; and that in conſequence of this regulation ſeveral ſail of veſſels were obliged to weigh anchor again immediately after their arrival, and proceed for other ports.—Late ordinances diſperſed throughout the French Weſt-India iſlands from France, among other meaſures to ſuppreſs and totally prohibit foreign trade, have authoriſed captains of ſhips and merchants from Europe, to act as commis du domaine, with a particular regard, as far as poſſible, to remove the ſtigma generally annexed to informers. Not one American veſſel, in particular, is ſuffered to come into their ports. Various are the conjectures reſpecting this new regulation.

By the Harriot, captain Wilſon, from Montego Bay, in Jamaica, arrived here laſt Monday, we are informed, that by way of confirmation of the accounts in our laſt, every ſhip of war (except the Europa, captain de Courcy, and two ſloops,) on the Jamaica ſtation, had ſailed to the Moſkito ſhore to ſupport the inhabitants of that coaſt againſt the Spaniards, who ſeemed determined to reduce and extirpate our good friends the native Indians.—That the Grantham and Halifax packets had ſafely arrived there from Falmouth, and the Portland packet had ſailed for England with their mails.—That the lieutenant-governor had granted a free pardon to John Traver, who had been condemned to ſuffer death for the crime of forgery; and that the American company of Meſſrs. Hallam and Henry, had opened their theatre at Montego Bay, with the addition of a young lady, named Miſs Haughton, in the character of Norah, in the Poor Soldier, wrote by Mr. O'Keefe, which was her firſt appearance; and when the ſeaſon for their performance ſhall be cloſed, Mr. Henry will embark with the company, and in the fall propoſes under permiſſion of government, to commence their exhibitions at the city of Annapolis the capital of Maryland, and after ſome reſidence there proceed to Halifax, in Nova-Scotia, previous to their return to the iſland of Jamaica.

We have the pleaſure to inform the friends of the right honourable the marquis de la Fayette (that is, every American) that this worthy nobleman, this patriot and ſoldier, landed ſafe at Breſt, after a paſſage of thirty days, from on board his Moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's frigate La Nymphe. In the ſpace of eight months and three days, his lordſhip has twice croſſed the ocean, twice viſited and ſpent a conſiderable time with his adopted father, the illuſtrious Waſhington, on the banks of the Patowmack; travelled upwards of eighteen hundred miles on this continent; traverſed eight of the United States; aſſiſted at the Congreſs of Indians, near Fort-Schuyler; on the head of the Mohawk River, 374 miles from here; ſpent a conſiderable time at Boſton, where he was received as he deſerved it, by general Knox, at the head of the Maſſachuſetts line, and of the whole body of the citizens; and finally returned here, from whence, after having ſtaid with us three weeks, he embarked again for his native country, on the 24th of December, 1784. He every where met with, and received thoſe marks of profound gratitude, which his zeal, his example, his ſervices, and his youth, have ſo ſtrongly engraved on the hearts of all the Americans: May this illuſtrious young man long live an ornament, the boaſt of his country, and the ornament of humanity.

May 19. A report has prevailed for ſome days paſt, that the Empreſs of China was to deliver her cargo at Philadelphia.—From certain information, we can aſſure the citizens that ſhe is to unload her rich cargo of teas, ſilks, china, nankeens, &c. here; by which the city and country will be ſupplied with theſe articles on moderate terms.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.

The 13th ult. Congreſs came to the following reſolution:

That any ſtate which ſhall have ſettled with, and paid the officers or privates of their late lines, in the army of the United States, on the principles of the reſolution of June 1ſt, 1784, relative to the proofs of claims to be admitted by the pay-maſter-general, ſhall be empowered to charge ſuch payment to the United States: provided that ſuch payments ſhall appear to have been made for ſervices which ſhall not have been ſettled for by the pay-maſter-general.

May 24. Sunday laſt the Spaniſh frigate Matilda, commanded by the chevalier Moralles, arrived here from the Havanna, which ſhe left the 3d of April. In this ſhip came paſſengers, his excellency Don Diego Gardoqui, ambaſſador from his Catholic majeſty to the United States; and Oliver Pollock, Eſq; conſul from the United States, at the Havanna.

We learn by the above veſſel, that that ſteady and confirmed friend to the United States, his excellency the Count Galvez, was ſome time ſince appointed to the government of the Havanna, where he arrived about four months ſince, and immediately proceeded to ſhew every favour to the Americans there, by counteracting the very rigorous conduct of the former governor of Cuba towards our countrymen, trading to that iſland. The courts of juſtice were opened for all Americans, who had money due to them, to proſecute for the recovery of their debts; and permiſſion was given for all who were formerly ordered from the iſland, to return and do themſelves juſtice.—Paſſages were provided for ſeveral Americans there, to return to their reſpective homes.—In this good work Count Galvez was much aſſiſted by his excellency Don Diego Gardoqui, who intereſted himſelf greatly in removing the unfavourable impreſſions which the behaviour of the late governor had made upon almoſt every one who had gone from the United States for the purpoſe of trading.

But we are ſorry to mention, that Count Galvez was ſoon after prevented from continuing this favourable conduct, by being appointed viceroy of Mexico, for which he was to ſail a few days after the Matilda left the Havanna, where his loſs would be much lamented.

Our accounts further add, that the intentions of Spain reſpecting the Moſkito ſhore, would in all probability, be proſecuted to extremities, as a conſiderable force had lately ſailed from Carthagena, in aid of the troops already employed on that expedition.

ALEXANDRIA, May 26.

Laſt Saturday the Henry, captain Denniſon, arrived here from Cadiz.—He informs, that the Britiſh conſul there had received letters from Tangiers, mentioning that the veſſel bound to this port from Cadiz, and taken and carried in there, had been ordered by the emperor of Morocco to be delivered up, and the people ſet at liberty; and that no more American veſſels were to be moleſted by his ſubjects, until it was known whether the United States were diſpoſed to be friendly or not.

At the fork of the two branches on the eaſtern bounds, and where both may be included, there is a remarkable convenient ſeat, with abundance of water, for a large merchant mill and ſaw mill, with plenty of ſtone for building, and heights to erect mills of any conſtruction. Adjoining to this ſeat are upwards of one thouſand acres of uncleared land, abounding with timber proper for a ſaw mill, ſuch as large white oak and pine, of the latter many large enough for ſhips lower maſts. The annual rents now on the lands are upwards of twenty-two thouſand pounds of tobacco, and there are upwards of four thouſand acres ſtill unſettled. It is a remarkable healthy place, and from its number of branches and ſmall natural meadows, affords good grazing for ſtock. The whole is laid off in thirty-two lots from one hundred and fifty to three hundred and fifty acres, for the convenience of purchaſers; and a draught may be ſeen, and the land ſhewn on application to colonel Bailey Waſhington, whoſe reſidence is adjoining to it.
